Congress Is Looking for Tax Income

President Sends Letter to Doughton and Sets Minimum Needed at 3 1/2 Billions

Offers Enigma

Makes Statement About Incomes Which Causes Speculation

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Congress today began hunting in earnest for additional revenue after hearing from President Roosevelt that "a minimum" of $3,500,000,000 in extra taxes would be needed to pay part of the extraordinary defense costs.

The goal, announced by the President last night in a letter to Chairman Doughton (D-N. C.) of the House ways and means committee, was the same as recommended previously by Treasury Secretary Morgenthau.

The stress, however, which Mr. Roosevelt laid upon the duty of every American to contribute to the nation's defense "in accordance with his talents and treasure" emphasized the administration's determination not to lower its sights in seeking additional funds.

In a letter made public at Charlottesville, Va., where he was visiting at the home of his military aide, Major General Edwin M. Watson, the President told Doughton:

"I hope your committee, with the help of the treasury, will formulate a tax bill which will convince the country that a national defense program intended to protect our democracy is not going to make the rich richer and the poor poorer."

On Principle of Ability
Without specifically listing sources from which an additional $3,500,000,000 could be collected, Mr. Roosevelt declared that additional taxes "should be based on the principle of ability to pay."

He also recommended that the federal revenue system be made "evasion-proof and so devised that every individual and every corporation will bear its fair share of the tax burden."

Then, without additional interpretation, he declared: "The income tax cannot fix the liability of individuals and corporations with equity as long as the tax base is defined to exclude substantial and significant elements of income."

Some tax experts here thought the President might have reference to tax exemptions on public securities. Others observed that the sentence might point toward possible lowering of income tax exemptions. Stephen Early, presidential secretary who handed the letter to reporters on the Watson lawn, declared "I'm not going to make any interpretations."

Meanwhile, in the House ways and means committee where the new tax legislation will originate, sentiment appeared developing against adoption of untried economic devices such as the flexible income tax system advocated by a group of 170 economists.

Chased Into Embassy

New York, May 3 (AP)—A German broadcast said that British Ambassador Sir Kinahan Cornwallis in Iraq was "chased back into the embassy" by a crowd of Iraqis today when he attempted to distribute leaflets in the streets of Baghdad. The broadcast said the leaflets asked the Iraqis to overthrow the Iraq government.

Ford Awaits Call

Draft Board Overrides Vote Which Would Have Deferred Benson, 21

Mt. Clemens, Mich., May 3 (AP)—Benson Ford, 21-year-old scion of the automobile family, today awaited a call to a year's military training.

The Macomb county Draft Board No. 2 placed the grandson of Henry Ford in class 1-A—available for immediate service—by a two to one vote.

The dissenting vote was cast by Charles N. McNaughton, uncle of Edith McNaughton, suburban Grosse Pointe Farms debutante whose engagement to Ford son of Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor Co., was announced April 19.

No reason was given why Ford failed to pass an earlier physical test, but the district medical advisory board later substantiated the examiner's report.

Italy Makes First Formal Land Claim

Rome, May 3 (AP)—Italy made her first formal claim to territorial spoils in the present war today, announcing annexation of Ljubljana, capital of Slovenia, and surrounding territory occupied by Italian troops. The territory annexed by Italy, however, constitutes only a part of Slovenia.

Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, reported in the newspaper Il Giornale D'Italia, that another section, in which German influence is predominant would go to Germany.

The old Yugoslav province of Ljubljana adjoins Italy at the head of the Adriatic sea.

Legion Asks U. S. Convoy Shipments, Miss Perkins Quit

Executive Group Adopts Resolutions Also Calling for President to Give Peril Outline

Indianapolis, May 3 (AP)—The American Legion's executive committee wants the United States Navy to insure delivery of material aid to Great Britain and recommends the resignation of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins in the interests of "national unity in national defense."

The committee, governing body for the 1,011,545-member veterans' organization between national conventions, also adopted resolutions yesterday calling upon the President to state all facts constituting an immediate danger to the country, and asking for legislation outlawing strikes and lockouts during the emergency, and voluntary cessation of defense work stoppages.

The executive group asserted that "practical and necessary aid to Great Britain and her allies requires that war material, food and medical supplies be delivered to them."

Ships making such deliveries, the committee pointed out, would run grave risk of attack by belligerent nations and therefore should be protected.

Supporting the convoy principle, the committee said "we earnestly urge the President of the United States as commander-in-chief of the armed forces of the nation to employ such units of the United States Navy and auxiliary forces in such manner as in his judgment may be required to insure the safety of American vessels and their crews."

The resolution urging the labor secretary's resignation asserted "it is becoming increasingly obvious that there is a growing lack of confidence on the part of the American people in the abilities of the present secretary of labor to fully exercise the high responsibilities of that office."

Americans have lapsed into "peace-time complacency," the committee said in its request for a presidential statement on the threats to the country's safety. It pledged support for "whatever plan of action shall be deemed by the President and Congress to be necessary for the safety of this nation."

The Legion executives assailed the Free Company of Hollywood, Calif., and Actor Orson Welles, a member, and opposed the type of plays the company broadcasts each Sunday over a national radio hookup.

Assistant Agent Small has been visiting orchards about the county today in order to secure first-hand information as to conditions, following the change from unseasonable warm weather to below freezing temperatures last night.

Lehman Follows Welfare Advice And Vetoes Bill

Social Department Advises Legislation Would Not Encourage Job Seeking by Relief Clients

Albany, N. Y., May 3 (AP)—Legislation designed to encourage job-seeking among home relief recipients was vetoed by Governor Lehman today on advice of the social welfare department, which contended it would have the opposite effect.

The measure was rejected as the chief executive worked through the last 100 of more than 1,000 "thirty-day" bills left by the 1941 Legislature for his approval or veto before midnight tonight.

It would have provided for withholding one-seventh of the weekly relief grant for each day of private employment obtained.

Republican Assemblyman Harold Armstrong, Schenectady sponsor of the proposal, said relief client obtaining temporary work are now dropped from the rolls and the loss incurred while waiting to be re-certified for assistance discourages acceptance of short time jobs.

The governor, however, cited a lengthy opinion by Social Welfare Commissioner David C. Adie, who said the bill sought to "accomplish on a mathematical basis what is being done more flexibly and often on a broader scale in each local welfare district . . . by administrative action."

Asserting proper handling requires each case be treated individually, Adie said "it may be possible to have the client pay either the gas and electric bill, or the rent, or a part of the food budget, or even to supply some essential item of clothing or needed medical or dental care, depending on the amount of earnings."

"To force the localities to deduct one-seventh of all of these items, as making up the total relief grant, would develop great complications and in our opinion would tend (1) toward increasing relief grants made by local officials, and (2) to make the relief recipients unwilling to accept temporary employment, unless it took the family completely off relief."

Meantime the governor, boost-

Axis Propaganda Plus Anglo Policy May Hurt Britain

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (Freeman Special News Service)

The revolt which has flared out of the Iranian desert against British control is a serious development for the Allies but its real menace lies not so much in the immediate circumstances as in the danger that it may spread throughout Iraq and overflow into neighboring Arabian countries.

So far as present indications go Britain might be expected to be able to localize this little war. However, should it extend it not only would throw a vast Arabian force against the British in the near East, but presumably would give the Axis powers the bases they need to develop their drive against the Suez Canal and Egypt.

Britain's anxiety as to the extent of the threat will be increased by today's news from Beirut, Syria, that the French authorities are carrying out an intensive search for saboteurs responsible for a destructive incendiary fire in a Tripoli refinery. Tripoli is the end of the great oil pipeline which runs from the wells of Iraq to the Mediterranean.

The danger to this oil line is one of the matters of immediate concern to the British, for their Mediterranean fleet is fed through this great duct.

Y.M.C.A. Workers Report $9,377 Fund Campaigners Are $3,151 Short of Their Goal

With approximately $3,000 needed the Kingston Y. M. C. A. budget campaign swung into its last quarter today, and will be brought to a close on Monday evening at a dinner meeting at the "Y." The reports of the workers submitted at the report meeting Friday night showed that so far there had been obtained 917 pledges and contributions totaling $9,377.

The goal set in the campaign this year is $12,528, leaving an actual balance of $3,151 needed to make the campaign an unqualified success.

Secretary George Goodfellow at the meeting last night brought out the fact that no large initial gifts were being made, and that the largest so far received was for $500 which was the annual contribution made each year by the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Corporation Counsel John M. Cashin expressed himself as well pleased with the results so far attained in the drive, and urged the workers not to slow up their efforts but between then and Monday (Continued on Page Seven)

Defense Officials Have Plans to Alter Industrial Workers' Shifts in U. S.

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Defense officials were understood today to have in mind sweeping proposals for rearrangement of industrial workers' shifts so that factories may operate more hours each week.

The proposals, it was said in informed quarters, probably would call for voluntary action by the management and labor.

Technical problems and the extra pay in many industries for Sunday and night work were said to make it impracticable to solve the problem of industry's "week-end blackout" simply by adding additional shifts. The new plans (Continued on Page Seven)

Strike Is Voted At Country Club Frocks Factory

Following a meeting of the employees of the Country Club Frocks, Inc., and Max Ulman, Inc., dress manufacturers in the Servicerent Building, Broadway and Pine Grove avenue, Friday evening at which time the employees, with the exception of 16, voted in favor of an open shop, pickets were on patrol duty in front of the plant this morning.

One of the pickets, when questioned today, said that 14 of the cutters and spreaders employed in the plant had struck. The decision to strike, he said, had been reached late last night.

A committee of employees when seen at the plant this morning said that the employees yesterday had decided to take a vote on the question of closed or open shop, and for that reason a meeting of the workers had been called to meet in the Y. M. C. A.

The committee said that the voting was supervised by an official of the "Y" and that the meeting was private, none but employees being admitted, and that union organizers or those in charge of the factories were permitted to attend and take part, and that the "bosses at the plants had nothing to do with the meeting."

They said that the meeting Friday evening was called at the request of the workers themselves, and that the "bosses at the plants had nothing to do with the meeting."

There are approximately 175 men and women employed at both plants.

Fighting Is In 2nd Day In Oil Area

British Lose 26 Planes and Fail in Attempt to Take Iraq Airport, Communique Says

Appeal Is Made

Iraq Government Sends Revolt Bid to All Arab Nations

(By The Associated Press)

War flamed fiercely in a graveyard of empires as the battle between British and Iraq forces went into its second day in an area crowded with memories of vanished Babylonian, Assyrian, Chaldean, Persian, Greek, Roman, Saracen and Turk power.

London said only "the fighting continues," but an Iraq communique declared that 26 British planes had been destroyed on Habbaniyah airfield, British base 60 miles west of fabled Baghdad, and that British motorized detachments had failed in an attempt to occupy another airfield.

Whether the German aid reportedly requested by Iraq's premier Raschid Ali Al Gailani, was beginning to arrive was not yet evident; but the German radio brought its heavy propaganda artillery into play with ominous suggestions of "a major test between British imperialism and the entire Arab world."

Vital significance was attached to the fact that in Iraq the British now are fighting under a disadvantage that did not face them in Greece; namely, that in Iraq it is the British who are being called aggressors by the government and the Germans who are reportedly being called on to rescue a little country from the "invader."

Appeals to Arabs

Meanwhile the German radio broadcast that Iraq's government had appealed to the Arabs in Palestine to take up arms against the British, declaring Iraq's fight was a general fight for the liberation of the Arabs; that British planes had attempted to bomb the Baghdad residence of Iraq's premier; that strong native troop contingents from Saudi Arabia were massing on the south Trans-Jordan border; that the British minister to Iraq had been "chased" by a angry crowd in the streets of Baghdad.

A British broadcast said "Basra (where British troops recently landed) is quiet, but there is no news of what is happening in Baghdad."

What attitude Turkey would take toward the developments in Iraq was still unclarified. But on the North African front, Axis forces took advantage of Britain's new embarrassment to strike with renewed vigor at Benghazi, Tobruk, where the German high command claimed deep penetration of the British defense lines despite stiff resistance.

From Ankara the German wireless reported that the Iraq government had arrested "numerous British agents who tried to incite the population"; that all British employees in the service of the Iraq government had been dismissed; that the Jews of Baghdad "tried to create a panic by closing their shops and spreading defeatist rumors."

Roosevelt Will Dedicate Birthplace of Wilson, World War Chief

Charlottesville, Va., May 3 (AP)—President Roosevelt found seclusion today amid picturesque and historic foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains.

From a floor-to-ceiling window in the guest house on the estate of Major General E. M. Watson, his secretary and military aide, Mr. Roosevelt could see the roofs of Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson. A bit farther away was the home of James Monroe.

Tomorrow the Chief Executive will visit and dedicate the birthplace of still another Virginia-born president, Woodrow Wilson. He will motor to Staunton to dedicate at noon the restored home where Wilson was born in 1856. He expects to be back in Washington tomorrow night.

O'Brien Disagrees With Editorial

States Real Defeatists Are Those Who Assert Our Participation Inevitable

Rosendale, N. Y., May 1, 1941

Editor The Kingston Daily Freeman:

I disagree entirely with the editorial contained in your issue of last Tuesday and entitled "Road to War." I heartily disagree with the conclusion drawn. I shall not quarrel with your statement that it seems to be assumed now that we will go the whole way with them, the British, advancing gradually, but perhaps rapidly, to a state of full belligerency. But I should like to ask: It seems to be assumed by whom?

Let me state from my observations and contacts with the people that it does not appear to me to be assumed by the people. The people of this country do not wish to "buy in" to these disastrous, unnecessary, perennial foreign conflicts. Give the people credit for more sense than that, and also give them credit for long memories. We all weren't born yesterday. We were fooled by fancy phrases and idealistic slogans the last time. But we do learn by experience. Also we can heed the sage advice of George Washington, and we can avoid foreign entanglements.

Let me quote your conclusion in order to dispute it: "All of which is lamentable—but in the opinion of most Americans, probably inevitable."

Have you made a poll of public opinion on this vital issue? Do the American people think that our participation in a senseless, stupid, futile, foreign mess is inevitable?

Can we set things in order in Europe and Asia? Even if we could do so, is it worth the effort and expense, in blood and money? How long would the new order which we might help establish, with American blood, last?

It is time for editorial writers to reflect the sentiments of the people.

The real defeatists in this country are the hysterical alarmists who assert, all day long over the radio and in the press, that our participation in this foreign shambles is inevitable. The brass hats and arm chair flyers may smear Lindbergh, but at least the American people have confidence that this erstwhile hero knows something about actual flying. They can't take that away from him.

Incidentally, you have one particularly sensible paragraph in your editorial comment of last Tuesday. The curse of democracy is bureaucracy. True words, well spoken. And in the history of the world, has any country ever been so burdened by the stifling effects of the cold, dead hand of bureaucracy as this country has been within recent years?

"America will be reborn when it stops its roaring self-righteousness." We can help promote and encourage democracy by precept and example. We can correct abuses here at home. Let us establish the "four freedoms" here at home before we send American boys across to the slaughter pens of Europe.

Why even in this defense program, there is discrimination and favoritism. Even in the building of the air arm of the defense program, there is discrimination against the mechanic and the artisan in favor of the boy who has gone to college. Did the Wright brothers have two years of college? Could they qualify as flyers? Uncle Sam today? We don't have to mention Lindbergh. The most celebrated flyer this country has ever produced is not permitted to make his services available. We remember how the late General Mitchell was forced out because of his courage in saying what subsequent events have shown to be true.

You cannot find a more loyal Britisher than H. G. Wells. He said that Britain took six months to learn that the boy from the garage made as good a flyer as the boy from the exclusive school. But the brass hats in the bureaucratic agencies here haven't learned that yet. We'll show the world, with our college boys exclusively, that we are superior in the air.

H. G. Wells said he thought the attitude of some British officials criminal. Even with the nation in peril, they wish to preserve at all costs their peculiar caste system. And all in the name of democracy. While their bureaucrats have been fiddling away precious time, the enemy has conquered Europe.

And while these bureaucrats in America, with their red tape and their dilatory and discriminatory tactics which apply even to the services, weaken us, the windbags and hot air merchants and radio ranters shout defiance to the world and promise that dear old Uncle Sam, formerly known for a generation as Uncle Sucker, will come to the rescue. We don't find the radio ranters taking the first boat over, either. They are having too good a thing of it.

The bureaucrats will remain in their offices and will be the first to make reservations in bomb-proof shelters should that eventually ever come to plague this country for not minding its own business.

Let's have some common sense, the sense of the people, before taking this final plunge. We are not in this war yet. It is a stupid war. War never solves anything. We cannot make Europe and Asia over. But we can make America strong by eliminating some of the abuses here, abuses promoted by the overgrown bureaucracy in Washington.

To those still wet behind the ears who attribute all the world's ills to the former paperhanger, we leave this thought: Were there not wars before he was born? Will there not be wars after he has gone? Do we not, as patriotic Americans, owe some respect to the memories of Washington, Jefferson and Monroe?

Sincerely,
R. C. O'Brien

Idle Talk

Des Moines, Ia. — The Iowa State Division of Vital Statistics is somewhat annoyed.

Because of citizenship questions arising from national defense, the division has been going at top speed providing certified copies of birth records for thousands of native Iowans.

Imagine the reaction, therefore, when one applicant addressed his letter: "The Division of Idle Statistics."

Symphony Orchestra Opens Music Week

Honey Flies Cause Trouble in Homes

Pyrethrum Powder Will Kill Them Outright

Ithaca, N. Y., May 3—Among the unwanted guests that now annoy many households are clusters of flies known as honey flies, and small striped beetles recognized as elm leaf beetles that normally feed on elm trees. Neither insect destroys or feeds upon clothing, but housewives find them a nuisance in attics and closets which they entered last fall to pass the winter. The honey flies breed within the bodies of earthworms, says Dr. R. W. Leiby, extension entomologist at Cornell, and they like to cluster close to each other like a small swarm of bees. He says they can squeeze through cracks only a third the size of their bodies and that they literally pour themselves through window cracks and small mesh of window screens. At this season they are active in attics, and like the elm leaf beetles, they are trying to get outside the houses to their summer playground.

The elm leaf beetles often pass the winter in houses surrounded by elm trees upon which the beetles developed the previous summer. Since they are pests of elm foliage, they should be killed and not be permitted to escape to the out-doors.

A strong pyrethrum powder dusted against the bodies of the flies and the beetles will either kill them outright or stupefy them so they can be swept up and burned, says Dr. Leiby. A good strong fly spray that contains pyrethrum extract is just about as good as a pyrethrum powder used as a dust, he adds, but dust treatment is suggested because the spray may stain wall paper or painted woodwork.

DEFENSE BONDS AND STAMPS

Most of us Americans are making money today. What shall we do with it?

Many are paying their debts, which is a grand way to clear the decks when you think there might be a storm.

Many are putting it into their homes, old or new—whittling down the mortgage, painting and papering and carpentering, getting things in shape for any sort of siege that might come in the next few years. And that is wise, as long as we are calm and intelligent about it, and mix a reasonable amount of faith with our foresight.

Many are investing, too, in securities; and that is a good thing if done wisely. It is well to have the advice of experts.

Some keep to the old method of putting money into an old sock and hiding it, and that isn't so good. In fact, it's foolish, because you might lose it or get it stolen; and at best, you don't make anything out of it. It's totally unproductive.

As good a way as any, for anybody in doubt, is to buy these government bonds and stamps, which are now on sale. These bonds can be obtained at the Central Postoffice here or at the commercial banks in the city. The stamps may be purchased at central or up-town or downtown branches of the local postal department. The bonds may be purchased in almost any denomination from $25 to $1,000 and they pay interest, which accumulates and becomes worth while. The stamps range from ten cents to five dollars.

In such investment a citizen while helping himself is also helping to finance his country through a troublesome time. And those federal bonds will be as good as any securities in the world, as long as there is any government anywhere.

HUEY IMMORTALIZED

After a cooling-off period in the cellar of the Capitol at Washington, the much-argued bronze statue of Huey Long of Louisiana is set up among the immortals in Statuary Hall. There is naturally a lot of argument about it. Many statesmen, and quite a lot of voters, insist that it's a disgrace to the Capitol. On the other hand, Senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana, who might be called a sponsor of the departed senator, boldly declares:

"My candid judgment is that the name of Huey Pierce Long will go down in history as another of our great American statesmen, while most of his critics will be forgotten before they are cold in their graves."

This much of the encomium, at least, is true—that Huey Long will go down in history. For generations people will be interested in the effigy of a statesman who bowed to no living man, and ruled his state as a full-fledged dictator, and lived with an armed body-guard day and night, and carried pistols in vest-pocket holsters, and mounted a machine gun on his front porch, and gave Louisiana a magnificent lot of expensive improvements.

He was a very able man, unique, almost a Hitler in ambitious daring and method—but saved by a sense of humor: "We shall not look upon his like again." And we can bear it.

CLEAN AMERICA

"Clean-Up Week" observances in this country are growing more inclusive, and that seems to be a good thing. The public is urged to clean, repair and paint its homes. Public authorities are urged to get the town's spring cleaning, rubbish-collecting and park sprucing-up done promptly and thoroughly. And everybody is urged to plant. More and more it is recognized that lawns, shrubbery, trees and flower beds—not to mention the vegetable garden—are assets to a community as well as inspiration to the spirit.

It is unfortunate that many times this emphasis is confined to a single week. Every Clean-Up campaign ought to include setting up some sort of permanent and continuing program for maintaining cleanliness and order. We need public education in the matter of civic housekeeping the year around. We need to train every citizen not to litter the streets with paper and other rubbish, not to injure property carelessly, not to save up all the repair jobs for a special—and distant—time.

This country right now is full of wise men loudly telling everybody what shouldn't be done, just as the critics did in the captive countries.

Precious patriotic thought: Every time you pay anybody less than he wants for anything, you're helping to prevent inflation.

Congress may set citizens a good example by cutting a billion dollars from non-defense funds.

Those Turks might yet choose a side in the war if somebody talked Turkey to them.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)
TRUSS IMPORTANT IN TREATING HERNIA

During the last world war, there was a large number of recruits found to have hernia. They had the choice of undergoing operation or dropping out of the army. Those that underwent operation were in hospital 3 to 4 weeks, remained home another 3 to 4 weeks, after which they were usually allowed to go on full duty.

What about the injection method of treating hernia? The injection method was in bad standing with the medical profession at that time owing to the fact that it was being done by other than physicians or by physicians without sufficient surgical training. In addition to this, the fluid used to sclerose or harden the tissues to prevent a hernia coming through was not always satisfactory.

Today, some surgeons report 90 per cent cures in carefully selected cases, while the lowest percentage of cases selected for the injection method is now about 30 per cent, 90 per cent of which obtain a cure.

What type of hernia is suitable for the injection method? While surgeons are not in complete agreement on what are suitable cases, it is agreed that—
(a) hernias that have occurred recently,
(b) hernias in thin individuals,
(c) those in which the hernia can be readily pushed back into the abdomen, and
(d) those who are older and would not undergo operation too well can be called suitable cases for the injection method. Dr. Lazarus Manoll, New York, N. Y., in Archives of Surgery, states that, in addition to a safe and effective "hardening" substance, the use of a well-fitting truss is absolutely necessary. The truss must be worn day and night during the entire time the injections are being given. The injections are given 2 or 3 times weekly for 6 to 8 weeks. After injections have been completed, the patient must remove the truss at night but wear it during the day for 4 to 6 months.

The poor results obtained in some cases may be due to the patient not wearing the truss for this long period.

Although this is a long time to be under treatment, the patient loses no time from his work.

DOCTORS FOR BRITAIN

The British Red Cross has asked the American Red Cross for 1,000 young doctors. So pressing is Britain's need for more medical men, support of this undertaking has been freely given by President Roosevelt and government officials, directly connected with our medical defense programs. From Washington has gone out the request for Selective Service Boards to give special consideration to volunteer doctors subject to military duty with our own troops.

Our doctors who are willing to serve Britain in this way, and who meet the rigorous requirements, will be eligible either for duty with the Royal Army Medical Corps or the civilian units of the Emergency Medical Service. As officers of the R. A. M. C., they may choose where they will serve, whether it be Gibraltar, Cairo or Burma. Their task will be to work side by side with British doctors in the treatment of military casualties. Those who elect to serve as civilians will be assigned duty with E. M. S. in Hospitals and first aid stations in bomb-wrecked areas on the home front.

Great Britain's medical profession is fighting death and injury against insuperable odds. On the home front in England and Scotland doctors are working days without rest. Bombing of population centers has heightened their task, limiting the number free to serve at the front.
On the Mediterranean front from Gibraltar to the Middle East—the fast movement of troops has created acute problems for Britain's Royal Army Medical Corps. In former wars medical officers attached to troops were able to handle large numbers of casualties in base hospitals. Today the British doctor at the front travels virtually on wheels, picking up his equipment in the dead of night and moving a hundred miles away to a new theatre of war. With the limited facilities of mobile units, more doctors are needed than in previous wars.

Aside from the humane aspects of sending doctors to Britain, this contingency of American doctors will return to America with invaluable experience in the medical techniques of modern warfare. Their knowledge and skills may be needed some day in the defense of our own shores.

★AMERICANA★ Swimm' Hole

By RAY PEACOCK
AP Feature Service Writer

A MAN has a right to grow maudlin over the forever lost ecstasies of his old swimming hole. When I daydream about it, I want a friendly pat of understanding not cold measured words which tell me that my watery paradise was a stagnant little pond, unhygienic, full of snags and steeples and germs.

I know all that, but I choose to remember the afternoons spent basking in the sun, the buried cigarbox which was a storehouse for things treasured and forbidden, the aimless conversations, the awakening consciousness of the adult world.

I choose to remember the joys of swimming uninhibited, the friendly, cooling water, a magic substance which robbed my body of its weight. I choose to remember the enduring friendships which were born of the attempt to mislead the common foe—parents who could not understand that our very existence depended upon this escape.

I know better now, of course. I know that our lives were in peril every minute while we were far from rescuers. I know that our parents were right all the time, and I want no son of mine to follow my footsteps.

Sure, I know better. But the other day on an outing I saw a kid with his hair slicked down and his face suspiciously clean. I knew that he and his gang were doing the same thing all over again, and I envied him and his youth and his old swimming hole.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — Answering the mail orders:

L. P. Miami, Fla.—The representatives of the territories in Washington are Anthony J. Dimond, Alaska; Samuel W. King, Hawaii; Joaquin M. Elizalde, the Philippines; and Belvoir Pagan, Puerto Rico. King and Dimond are delegates; Elizalde and Pagan, resident commissioners. The best way to describe all four is that they are non-voting members of the House of Representatives. They are elected just as congressmen are elected and, in general, they perform all the functions of congressmen in representing their territories.

Maj. A. B. P. (Retired), Camp Haan, Calif., I stand corrected and am happy to be able to quote a real authority on the soldier's use of the term "GI." (The Major explains: "GI means officially 'government issue.' Officers, soldiers buy civilian shirts, shoes, ties, etc., and at a Saturday morning or other inspection the captain will often ask if such and such an article of apparel worn by a soldier is GI. The expression is used in many ways and where a dance is sponsored by a soldiers' club or camp hostess and is for soldiers and their ladies only, it is referred to as a GI dance. A show troupe may put on a show in a camp or post for soldiers only and that is a GI show.")

K. V., Louisville, Ky.—There is no chairman of the Senate military affairs committee at present. Sen. Robert Reynolds (D-N. C.) has seniority right to the important post and wants it, but the steering committee that handles committee assignments has taken no action, presumably because Senator Reynolds has fought the administration on its foreign policy and resided long in the isolationist camp. If the committee should go against Senator Reynolds, it would be the first time in nearly 25 years that seniority hasn't predominated in committee.

T. D., Fairfield, Ill.—Roughly, defense hiring in Washington is going at the rate of 1,000 a week. Most officials here think that it will be midsummer before there will be any slackening off, but that will depend entirely on world developments. Washington is supposed to have increased its population 10 per cent in the last year and now to be the tenth city in the country, with well over 725,000.

Businessmen Who Would Cooperate With Government on Defense Orders Have No Assurance They Won't Be Prosecuted Under Sherman Act

(By DAVID LAWRENCE)

Washington, May 3.—American businessmen who attempt to cooperate patriotically with the government on the allocation of production and orders have not been given any guarantee that they will be immune from prosecution under the Sherman anti-trust laws. Union labor has been granted absolute immunity by the Supreme Court without even the sanction of Congress. Management, however, runs the risk of prosecution.

Attorney General Jackson has issued a statement endeavoring to clear up the difficulty, but it only serves to reveal the peril.

Thus, last January a committee of steel men who could not possibly fulfill all the orders available and who endeavored to allocate the work between them on the most practicable basis has now been told that this is illegal. To get around the difficulty, the department of justice now says such allocation of orders will be all right if a government official makes the request. The department adds:

"Meetings of the industry with the office of production management and the office of price administration or their representatives are not illegal. Industrial committees may be formed at the request of the office of production management or the office of price administration to work with representatives of such offices on problems of defense. There will be nothing unlawful in the industry cooperating in the selection of its representatives or in selecting members of its committees, or in the activities of such committees provided they are kept within the scope of this letter."

"All requests for action on the part of any unit of an industry shall be made to such unit by the office of production management or the office of price administration and not by the industry committee. That is to say, the function of determining what steps should be taken in the public interest, should in each case be exercised by the public authority which may seek the individual or collective advice of the industry. But the determination should not be made by the industry itself or by its representatives."

It is obvious that in any industry there must be a meeting of the principal companies and a "determination" in order to arrive at a practical formula for cooperation with the government. The department of justice evidently will wink its eye at such a "determination" and will consider it merely as "recommendations" to the government.

Requests by the O. P. M. and other agencies of the government for action in the allocation of orders is to be made only after they have been cleared through the Department of Justice. But, it is added, if any changes in personnel occur in the O. P. M. or in the office of price control or "if

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By R. L. VAN DEUSEN

With baseball again becoming a popular subject of discussion among sport fans it is interesting for me to recall some of the pitchers who were well known a quarter of a century or so ago. I am speaking of the amateurs whom I recall having seen twirl many a fine game.

Probably there are many readers who recall the days when Eddie Scherer, the left hander from South Rindout, and Harold McKenzie of Port Ewen were tossing them over for some of the fast amateur and semi-pro teams in this vicinity.

Scherer in those days was a stocky built chap with a heavy head of dark hair, and he had a fine assortment of curves and excellent control. Then also there was Fred Stoudt, now a lieutenant in the police department, who used to pitch for many of the fast teams in and around Kingston, and who still tosses them over when the local police squad have a ball game with the Newburgh police.

McKenzie began pitching early for I remember when I was a boy of ten or twelve years old we used to play on what was known as the Commons in Port Ewen, but which in later years became a building development and there are a number of fine houses in place of the wide, open spaces of the years at the turn of the century.

Hank as we called him in those early days had but one curve. That was the old round house out curve. Being but ten years old at the time he did not have the speed he later developed as he grew older and I still shut my eyes and see that old round house curve. All you had to do was to step out and mow it.

We had not been pounding Hank's pet and only curve for a considerable time, however, before he began to develop an assortment of twists which soon kept us guessing.

In later years I recall seeing Hank twirl many an excellent game and for years he was one of the ace pitchers in this section as was Ed. Scherer and Fred Stoudt.

Another old time pitcher, now dead, is Bill Hanley, who was sergeant in the Kingston police department for a number of years. Before he became a policeman, however, he used to twirl in the old Hudson River League. He had blinding speed and excellent control.

I also recall "Bud" Culloton, now leader of Ulster county Democrats, who in his more youthful days was one of the finest twirlers in this section of the country. He was so good that he was with the Pirates at one time.

Literary Guide

By JOHN SELBY

Around the world in five books—

Hallett Abend's loosely constructed "Japan Unmasked" is the result of 15 years in China and Japan. The book covers the entire Oriental situation, and is alarming. Perhaps most alarming is Mr. Abend's conviction that neither the United States nor Japan is bluffing at present, and that those controlling Japan dare not back down because to admit a mistake before the home folks would be fatal.

Emily Hahn takes us to China for a look at the remarkable careers of the three daughters of Charlie Soong, and at China itself. These three girls, educated at Wesleyan College for Women in Georgia, are now Madame Kung, wife of China's great financier; Madame Sun Yat-sen, wife of the leader of the Chinese revolution, and Madame Chiang Kai-shek, and they personify modern China.

"Focus on Africa" is the record of an air trip from Capetown to Cairo in the winter of 1937-38, partly in prose and partly in photographs. Richard Upjohn Light's story is factual, rather than interpretative and Mary Light's photographs are mostly those typical views from the air in which everything is reduced to tiny proportions—own mountains, mountains mere bumps. It is a story of wonders still remote enough to seem strange. (American Geographical Society.)

The story of an ocean which actually is a continuation of three other oceans in Russell Owen's to tell in the latest of the Ocean series of books, "The Antarctic Ocean." There is less actual history to relate than in the case of any other sea, but it is exciting enough.

Quentin Reynolds had more in him than came out in "The Wounded Don't Cry," and here it is in "A London Diary." This is the intimate, hour by hour account of a brave people under a devastating plague, and supplements the old book and the many articles in this section which have told so much.

Thorn in Side of Railroad
Pasco, Wash. (AP)—A passenger train, speeding through one of eastern Washington's blustering windstorms, picked up so many rusty shingles that its cow-catcher became so thick and extended out so far that it threw an emergency switch and derailed the train.

Another old time player is Art Rice of Andrew street. In his day there was not a better third baseman in this neck of the woods.

This is the time of year when a motorist changes to summer-grade oil and grease and gets out on the road. His grandfather used to grease and repair the harness and get to plowing.

Pessimist—So you traded in your old car at last?

Optimist—Yes, I'm not one to hold back on our defense program, when the government needs scrap iron.

Heart Breaking Ones:

Of all sad words,
I ever hear,
The saddest are—
"You can't park here!"

Woman Driver (indignantly, after the crash)—I turned the way I signaled!

Man Driver—I know it. That's what fooled me.

You are getting old, when you can look at your old 1933 car and realize it looks seedy and not give a darn.

That Southern Accent—

Gas Station Attendant—How's your oil?

Fresh Motorist—Fine! How's you all?

Spring—

Its love that makes the world go round.

In a sense not geographic;

But on a moonlight night in Spring.

It simply ties up traffic.

Judge—Come now, you really don't think he meant to put your eye out?

Pat—No, I don't, but I do believe he tried to put it further in.

During 1941 more than 40,000 people will die from automobile accidents. Will you be one of them?

Diner—Waiter, is an insult to a call to call this a real cutlet.

Waiter—I didn't mean to insult you.

Silence is the College Yell of the School of Experience.

Teacher—How do you get down from an elephant?

Junior—You don't get down from an elephant—you get down from a goose.

I think that I shall never see

A boy that doesn't hungrily eye

A plate of food that's passing by;

A boy who really loves to wear

His suit all cleaned and pressed with care.

But boys are loved by fools like me,

For who the heck would kiss a tree?

Adaptability

The individual who has adaptability possesses an invaluable asset. The power to adapt himself to any surroundings happily—the knack of making any adjustment conducive to harmonious cooperation with the others in his organization makes for better understanding and teamwork in all business contacts.

No doubt, you have seen a person who did not seem at all fitted for a position but, he obtained it and though he had the ability required for the work, he also possessed adaptability and could easily fit in with his new surroundings. This helped him make a success of his job.

A sunny, even disposition is a great aid in promoting peace and creating whatever adjustments necessary for harmony when dealing with associates. And tolerance is a much-needed virtue today.

"Together is a beginning"; Keeping together is progress; Thinking together is unity; Working together is success!"

Someday I'll Find You

BY MARGARET WILLIAMS

YESTERDAY, Eileen had gotten the radio job she wanted and made a success of it. But the war came along and crowded her off the air, and now she is about down and out. She has agreed to go with Molly Flanagan to Iowa to a candle to St. Anthony, although she is a Protestant, but on the way she decides to capitulate—to go back to Denver and the man she does not much want to marry. She gives Molly's fiancé a telegram to send, and goes on with Molly.

Chapter 17

Chance Meeting

THE two girls pushed open the noiseless leather-covered doors and tiptoed over the stone floor. Eileen stood a little back while Molly tiptoed to the tall, colored St. Anthony, near the front by the right hand aisle.

"Think what you'd be wanting while I light the candle," Molly whispered.

Eileen could not think. Her mind went round in circles. "If I only knew what to do," she thought vaguely. "If I could only tell Jordan that I would marry him, and do it, without having to pretend I loved him. . . . Oh, well, perhaps love will come. . . ."

Molly pulled her down into a pew. "I'll be saying a decade or so," she whispered.

The little candle burned brightly on, stuck in the holder among hundreds of other candles. Molly, on the inside of the pew, head bowed, was whispering prayer; as the beads ran through her fingers, Eileen, half kneeling, watched it.

As she watched, two people came along down the aisle, between her and the lights. She noticed the girl's hand dully—engagement ring, wedding ring, fursleeved coat. Her own hand would be like that now in a month or so.

Then suddenly, her eyes focused more sharply. She knew the shape inside the smart new coat. Lucille Anders, Lucille, married, in New York with—yes, her arm was through a man's, a man not enough taller than she was to show sharply.

They moved as Eileen stared. She heard Lucille whisper, "Darling, let's burn a candle, just for luck—to make sure it's a happy marriage! Do you mind?"

And the man, moving forward, whispered back, "All right, darling. He moved a little ahead of her to pay for the candle. Eileen saw him, outlined against the trefle of candles; they glinted on his glasses, his pale, regular profile, his little stoop. Jordan Estlin.

St. Anthony had certainly lost no time.

Molly was rising; there was nothing for it but to face it through. She stepped into the aisle; she smiled and held her hand out, behind her, made her mouth into a round O of surprise, then swept them all outside, before Jordan could more than gasp and color.

"Isn't this splendid!" Eileen said, head high, hands out in greeting. "And what a blessing we met just now. I'd have hated to miss you, Lucille, and I'm just on the edge of a trip—how long are you both in town for?"

Lucille, beaming, proud, possessive, talked enough for herself and her bridegroom. They were in town for a week, then Jordan had to get back to work. They were doing New York. They'd called up and couldn't get Eileen's address. Wasn't she on the radio now?

What network?

"Just in between things," Eileen answered steadily. And then, Molly, as it proved honestly, said that she had to be getting back. The Estlins gave Eileen the address of their hotel, and the painful scene broke up. Jordan, throughout, had been silent and ill at ease; he looked at Eileen as little as he could manage.

Narrow Squeeze

MOLLY broke the silence, as they got into the bus to get back to Third Avenue.

"You got to hand it to St. Anthony," she said. "He made up your mind for you. Well, you never liked him anyhow."

She referred, as Eileen knew, to Jordan Estlin, not the saint.

"No," Eileen answered. Her whole mind was wrapped up in the fact that Jordan had got back—or perhaps by tomorrow, if people carefully forwarded his telegrams—he would have her telegram, telling him that she would come back to him and marry him.

She laughed aloud, there in the bus, so that people turned and looked at her. Well, Jordan would be getting a little of his own back, anyway.

"You coming in?" Molly said, in surprise, as Eileen walked with her to the flower shop, brightly lighted still, with the moving about, plain within the plate-glass windows.

Eileen nodded.

She went straight up to Ris. "Did you send the telegram?" she demanded. There might be some hope, she thought, of countermanding it.

Ris's brown eyes dropped guiltily.

"Well, no—you see, Eileen, I—things went so fast I just couldn't get round to it. I'll send it right away, now. Molly, you see to this lady, please, no?"

Eileen said excitedly, "No, no, Ris, I've changed my mind. I'm going to stay in New York. It hadn't gone! At least her pride was saved.

Molly, leaving the lady for a minute, said, "All right, Ris, don't you bother. It was just as well, and better."

Just then another customer entered. Eileen, in gratitude, took her over. For the next hour, one of those sudden swirls of activity known as "it never rains but it pours" struck the modest little flower shop.

Eileen, glad of something to distract her mind from the shock of what she had been through, tied up sprays of gardenias and put violets into boxes and telegraphed flowers to peoples' relatives with swift capacity. Presently the tide died down.

"Gosh! A good evening. You bring us luck, Eileen," Ris said, smiling at her. "You work well. I am very glad you stay."

She stood still in the doorway. For the moment the shop was empty except for the two girls and Ris. Through the door that communicated with the delicatessen, she could see Nick, with his friendly, professional smile, busily tying up a package of groceries. He beckoned Molly, gesturing to the cashier's cage. Molly, with a desperate, cocked eyebrow, laughed and started to go.

"Wait a minute," Eileen said. "Molly, didn't you say Ris wanted another helper, only he couldn't afford to pay for the kind he wanted?" "Why—why, sure I did," Molly said, startled.

"Ris," Eileen said earnestly, turning to him. "Will you take me on, for what you can pay? By the time I can find something else, probably you'd be able to pay somebody else more."

"You would? You would?" Ris cried. "Oh, well, Molly, would it not be well?" His face brightened. "It suits perfectly. And I give you time to hunt work, when things are slack, and this poor Molly's feet get rested. What you say, Molly?"

"Why, it looks as if it might work," Molly said slowly. She went to answer Nick's frenzied gesture. And just then some more belated customers came into the flower shop, and Eileen fell to work, with no more words said.

"Don't you like the idea, Molly?" she asked, when the two girls were alone together in their room, that night.

"It's all right," Molly said slowly. "We'll see how it works."

Proposal

EILEEN went on hunting for work. She went on faithfully, through the rain and snow of that January, with the nondescript job at Ris's flower shop. She tried to be cheerful, to keep on having hope, to feel that somewhere, somehow, there was a future for her; that there was something better, here in New York, for that Eileen Gardner, who had been going to be so wonderful, than wearing out shoe-leather trying to find work that couldn't be found.

She was sitting at the back of the little shop, rapidly making up bunches of violets, wrapping them with black thread, tin foil, adding false shiny leaves.

She had time to think, more than the work of actual selling, or keeping the books, it occupied her mind. Things were odd with Molly, too, lately. Molly was kept more and more occupied with Nick's end of things. Molly had been so good to her, always, that Eileen tried especially hard to do all the flower-shop work she could.

But lately Molly had been queer; depressed, even snappy sometimes. Which made things harder still for a girl going through one of those times in life when everything is hard. I mean, Martin.

If she could only stop thinking and dreaming about him; a man she had seen only once, kissed only once, heard from only once more. . . .

The violets were done. Eileen's mouth set. She walked across to the back desk, and deliberately picked up the wire cutters that lay there, to twist Martin's gold ski off her bracelet and stop being a little fool. A hand on her shoulder stopped her.

She turned. It was only Aristides. The shop was empty, this day of cold downpour.

Aristides looked at her with those doglike brown eyes of his. He said to her, "Eileen, I have tried to show you. Eileen, I have fallen for you hard. I am in love with you."

She pulled away. She said sharply, "But good gracious, Ris, you're going to marry Molly Flanagan!"

Ris said, with that disarming gentleness of his, "I have always liked Molly. I do not wish to be rude with Molly. But Eileen you must know how it was. Nick and Molly, they always both tell me what to do. Tell me to wake up, be a sport. Nick pushes me, Molly pushes me, and presently I find that everybody is sure I will marry Molly."

He had taken his hand off her shoulder. He did not try to touch her, he only stood, looking at her, gently, adoringly.

She shook her head. She said, "I don't love you. Ris, I never thought of you that way any more than I would a married man. And even if I did, Molly's been the best friend I ever had."

Employment Week Gets Underway

More Older Men Expected to Be Placed on Jobs

Albany, May 4.—According to Richard C. Brockway, director of the New York State Employment Service, the 93 employment offices in New York state have been called upon by Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt to make a special effort during National Employment Week to bring to the attention of employers, men and women over 40 who might be placed in jobs. In his proclamation declaring the week beginning May 4 as National Employment Week, President Roosevelt stated that he was sure many of these older workers had the skill and training needed during this time of national preparation.

"Each year National Employment Week has met with a ready response from employers, labor organizations, veterans' groups, churches, civic and business clubs, and other public-spirited groups," said Mr. Brockway. "This year, with the defense effort calling for more and more skilled workers, we should be able to place more older men and women in positions of responsibility. Many of them have the skills so urgently needed by employers in defense industries."

Mr. Brockway called attention to the fact that among the "over-40" group were many World War veterans, men who now average 48 years of age. "In the words of the President's proclamation," he said, "these men have a special appeal to our national sense of responsibility, particularly during this time of national preparation." In 93 offices of the New York State Employment Service, there are veterans' placement representatives whose special responsibility it is to promote job opportunities for veterans. He urged employers to cooperate in providing jobs for these men.

"Since it takes about seven years for a man to become a first-class machinist," declared Mr. Brockway, "it is most reasonable to expect that most of the skilled workers now needed will be mature people. Employers are coming to realize this and more and more of them are cooperating with their local state employment office in hiring older men and women for the jobs they have open. The old saw about a man over 40 being of no more use has been thrown out of the window since we started registering workers for defense jobs. We have even known men give up their old-age insurance payments and go back to work because their skills were needed in a defense industry."

"Not only have men and women out of work reentered with their local employment offices," continued Mr. Brockway, "but many persons who are not using their highest skills in their present jobs have come into the local employment offices to tell us what their qualifications are. In some cases their skills had become 'rusty' after years in other kinds of jobs. They were referred to refresher courses, which they are taking after their regular working hours. When they finish, they will be available for jobs in their old trades."

The greatest shortages of skilled workers, according to Mr. Brockway, are found in the aircraft manufacturing, shipbuilding and machine shop fields. Makers of airplanes need sheet metal workers, airplane woodworkers and inspectors. The shipbuilding industry is calling for ship carpenters, joiners, boatbuilders, ship fitters, caulkers and marine machinists. Machine manufacturers need tool makers, lathe operators, boring mill operators, tool and die designers and general machinists.

Funds to Meet Appeal For War Sufferers

In a letter addressed Thursday May 1, to pastors in the New York Archdiocese, Archbishop Francis J. Spellman asks that collections be taken on Sunday, May 11, for a fund to meet all the general appeals for war sufferers during 1941, and at the same time sets aside the entire month of May for prayers for peace.

On Memorial Day, May 30, the Archbishop announced, "when it is customary to pray for the souls of our honored dead," he will offer a Pontifical Mass in St. Patrick's Cathedral and "extend the charity of our prayers to include also the living and dead victims of this sad, senseless, apocalyptically ominous war."

The fund for which the collection will be taken on May 11 responds to the request of the Bishops of the United States in organizing last February the National Catholic Community Service to work in cooperation with the United States Organizations for National Defense in serving the religious, spiritual, welfare and educational needs of men and women in the armed forces and defense industries. The American bishops recommended that one such collection be taken up in every church in the United States.

tured and that every single critical machine in the United States be used the maximum number of hours each week.

Walter D. Fuller, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, telegraphed the President from New York that he would make an immediate tour of defense production areas to encourage compliance with the request.

But the N.A.M. remarked that it was not possible now to operate machine tools more than 100 of the 168 hours in a week because of time losses caused by oiling, repairs, lack of balance between various types of machines, and labor and material shortages.

The President spoke of the necessity of speeding the manufacture of machine tools as well as increasing the use of those already operating, both goals toward which the OPM has been driving.

Officials said there were approximately 80,000 persons engaged now in making machine tools and as of December, 75 per cent of them were working on "first shifts," 20 per cent on second shifts. Attempts to increase the number on second and third shifts had shown some results, they said.

FASHIONS and HOUSEHOLD HINTS FOR WOMEN

These Women In Men's Shoes

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Feature Service Writer

Lots of women are doing men's jobs with success nowadays.

Three girls are driving taxi-cabs in San Jose, Calif., because the draft and defense and defense work have made men drivers so scarce. To get their jobs they had to draw a map of the city from memory and pass three exam-ations — the cab company's, the city's and the state's. Their boss says at least one of them drives as well as any man he's seen. The girls work eight hours a day.

Jay Hurd of San Jose

Louise and Fanny Moore spend a lot of time hiking along the bottom of the river bed (30 feet below the surface) in Jacksonville, Fla. They're divers in their father's salvage business, which operates from the houseboat where the family lives. Two brothers make the rest of the crew.

The girls began their diving several years ago after a visiting youngster dropped his air rifle overboard and Louise dove to recover it. Now they both slip on their heavy suits and helmets frequently and go down on such assignments as recovering outboard motors and locating 4,000-pound pile driver hammers that have been lost overboard.

What they like best though is open-air athletics. Fanny holds the women's state track record for 400 meters and Louise the record for the javelin throw.

Dr. Eloise H. Heath, a Vassar graduate, is believed to be the only woman in the country who is chief chemist of a water supply system. (The American Water Works Association records disclose no other.) For the last seven years, as chief chemist of the New Haven, Conn., Water Co., she has sampled the 27,000,000 gallons of water consumed daily in the New Haven area.

Dr. Heath says there is a growing demand for research to prevent harmful growth in reservoirs and pipelines and that many women are qualified for the work. Her chief worry in her job is the prevention of coliform (intestinal bacteria). To check on that she collects samples of water from New Haven taps and puts them in a culture medium of beef broth and sugar kept in an incubator at body temperature. (The bacteria multiply quickly in that combination and cause fermentation in the broth.)

Gardening is Dr. Heath's hobby. She runs a flower plot at the laboratory and a vegetable garden at home.

Maggie Porter was "the law" in Parma, Mo., for several months. After her father died last December, she pinned his chief of police star on her suit lapel, strapped a six-shooter around her waist and set out to keep law and order. She made 30 arrests in two and a half months, so the town fathers told her to "carry on" till the spring election.

Pretty soft-voiced Helen Blake heads two man-sized companies in Newark, N. J., which buy and sell scrap iron. She stepped from college to the presidency of both when her father died and she inherited them. As head of the Federal Iron and Metal Co. she collects scrap iron from dismantled buildings and obsolete trolley lines. As president of the Federal Salvage Co., she buys scrap iron from dismantled ships. She sells to steel mills. Her friends say she "works till all hours."

Miss Blake favors starkly tailored business suits—mostly blue and black. But she loves—and wears—earrings and silly hats.

Music in Rainbow Hues
Music comes in rainbow hues in Sao Paulo, Brazil, now that Boracina Braga, has devised a new system of teaching. "Do" is violet, "re" is dark blue, "mi" is light blue, "fa" is green "sol" appropriately is yellow, "la" is orange, and "si" is red on the musical scale of D. Each note is played in connection with a color. The system has been patented by Dona Boracina.

New Silhouette Is Holding On, But That's All

By AMY PORTER
AP Fashion Editor

Who wears the new silhouette—narrow sloping shoulders, tight skirt, lower waistline?

About one woman in ten, a stylist estimates. Popular price manufacturers, discovering women didn't like this last word in silhouettes, returned to tight waists, square shoulders, billowing skirts for summer.

Nevertheless, high fashion authorities insist the newer silhouette will gain ground in the fall. So enjoy your full skirt while you may.

Mother's Day best-sellers will be, in this order: Flowers, handkerchiefs, hats, accessories. The flowers-by-wire people have designed several corsages, especially suitable for the older woman, notably one making smart use of comparatively inexpensive irises. "Mother" handkerchiefs are embroidered with red and white carnation motifs, sometimes have the word "Mother" embroidered on them too (a sticky notion, in the opinion of this department).

Big-brimmed and youthful rather than small and matronly hats will appeal to this spring's mothers, as the stores see it.

In accessories, the newest and gayest are bags and hats with a spangly, sugar-candy look. These are made of crystal clear plastics, crocheted or knitted. Other new bag materials are crocheted wool, raffia and beads.

The National Geographic Society says the women of America wear more veils than the women of Turkey. Easy to believe, if you viewed the Easter Parade. Clouds of veiling—pink, white, red, green, purple, black and brown—will continue to soften the fashion scene, right through the summer.

In its newest use it is tied about the crowns of big-brimmed hats and drips down the back.

Big-brims are really big this time, up to nine inches. Usually soft, stiff, in outline—made of rippled black organza, champagne-colored straw, chicken wire white straw, shirred red felt.

Shirtwaister With Hip-Yoke

Marian Martin

PATTERN 9712

First place among warm-weather casual dresses is held by the shirtwaister! Pattern 9712 is a new Marian Martin version of this beloved, ageless mode, designed especially for thirty-four-and-up figures.

The bodice, with its young notched collar and front buttoning, is soft-cut for gentle bustline ease. Those easy-to-make party-way seams at the shoulders are an ingenious device—they hold fullness below and give the effect of real yokes. Slim, flat-hipped lines are created by a smart and very much in vogue hip-yoke that forms one smooth piece with the front skirt panel. Your sleeves may be short, three-quarter length or long. This style makes a useful addition to your wardrobe, in crisp chambray, shantung or spun rayon.

Pattern 9712 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 3 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric.

The sloped-shouldered, slim-skirted silhouette is high fashion rather than popular, but fashion experts predict its growing importance. Here Hattie Carnegie interprets it in a clinging black dinner dress, high-throated, full-hipped, slim-skirted. To complement it, she selected the Josephine watch, a triangular design in pink gold. Headress is made of three pink tulips and a black velvet band.

Queen of the May

Any little girl can be queen of the May if she bears homemade cookies or fresh flowers to relatives or friends. The little miss here made the cookies herself (with help from mother). Here is how: Mix two-thirds cup sweetened condensed milk and 2 cups coconut. Add finely chopped dates, prunes or apricots. Drop on baking sheet and bake about 10 minutes at 350 degrees. Good for 24 to 30 cookies.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personality of a House," "The Blue Book of Social Usage," etc.)

AGAIN QUESTION OF BRIDESMAIDS SERVING AT WEDDING RECEPTION IS RAISED AND ANSWER IS DIFFERENT.

Sometime ago I printed a letter from a reader who asked what I thought of inviting friends of a bride to serve as waitresses at a sit-down wedding breakfast. I remember very well that I thought it scarcely an honor! The following letter puts another light on the question. It asks this: "Do you think it would be permissible to ask my bridesmaids to serve at the wedding reception instead of standing the whole time in the receiving line? It is customary here to have young friends help pass plates of sandwiches and cakes and I don't think I like asking outside friends, who are not to be included in the wedding party, to do this service."

I think your bridesmaids should receive with you for as long as the line of arriving guests is unbroken. After this, it might be possible to let them proffer plates as you suggest. In fact, mingling with the guests this way would give them a chance to see everybody—to say nothing of having everybody see them!

Graduation Preliminaries

Dear Mrs. Post: It is early but nevertheless we are thinking in terms of graduation. Some of us have a question about the visiting cards which are customarily engraved before graduation and enclosed with the invitations. These will be the first visiting cards that most of us have had. We understand that they should be engraved with the title but none of us is sure whether we should include an address on them.

Answer: Miss should be prefixed to the names but on this occasion no address is used.

A Society Reporter Asks a Question

Dear Mrs. Post: I am a society reporter on a small newspaper. It is part of my job to write up the local weddings. If I have not been invited, either by note, telephone or regular engraved invitation, to the church and to the house, I haven't gone but have simply telephoned the house, or gone there and tried to get the necessary details. I understand, however, that some of the families are criticizing me for not coming to the weddings even without invitations. But though I am a professional, it had not occurred to me to take such liberty. Will you give me your opinion.

Answer: On the contrary, I think it best that you make the move, because unless you are really a friend of either family, the bride's mother would hesitate to send you an invitation because it might give the impression that she was persuading you to write an important description of the wedding. On the other hand, if your office were to telephone and say for instance that the "Morning Star" would be very glad to send their Miss Scrivener to report the wedding if Mrs. Bride-mother would like them to, this would be very courteous and yet at the same time allow a family which dislikes publicity (there are a few such) to feel free to thank the editor but explain that the wedding is to be too small and private for a write-up. This refusal would be easy to make because no reflection on you personally. If they would like a description of the wedding, then this would of course mean that you are invited.

New Cuts, New Colors in Style News for Men

AP Feature Service

Trousers narrower, coats longer, colors brighter.

Who says men's clothes never change?

Blue is the leading color in men's wear for spring, 1941, with the diamond brown shades running a close second. But both colors are livelier up in colorful weaves, and are worn with brighter accessories.

Stripes are strong favorites in both single and double-breasted coats, and most coats are somewhat longer—with three buttons preferred. The young man buttons the top button; the older man, the center one.

Trousers are narrower at the cuff, some of them almost pegged.

Innovations in sports coats include leather buttons, light colors, such as blue-and-white mixtures, combinations of yellow and tan, and the blue and gray combinations. Air Force blue leads for business and dress-up wear, seen mostly in chalk stripes on flannel.

Young men will choose off-the-face felt hats as often as snap brims. These are in lovely colors, sometimes two tones.

Contrasting hat bands look fresh and spring like—blue bands on brown hats, maroon on gray, bronze on blue. Summer straws—snap-brim panamas and coconut straw, and stiff straw sailors—have multi-color bands of brighter hue than ever before. But this is getting ahead of the story. Straw hats can wait till May 15.

Rough-finish, mixture felt hat—excellent complement for spring tweeds. Narrow self band and saddle stitching on the overwelt at the brim edge make for casual smartness.

How Do You Wear Your Walls?

Dark against light. Good fit

Light against light. Poor fit

By MARGARET KERNDOL

AP Feature Service Writer

Coiffure and complexion are dictating the color of walls.

In fact, your color personality takes a prescription, not only for paint or wallpaper but also for rugs on your floors, draperies at your windows and even for those new slip covers you covet.

Smart interior decorators for some time have been making much of their clients' colorings in designing rooms. Charm schools and success courses thrust color charts at their patrons.

Now the experts ask you to wear your walls as carefully as you choose your chic costume. "Let the colors of your house complement you," they say.

In recent New York fashion shows, blondes, silver-gray heads, redheads, brunettes (dark brown to black heads) and the typical American light - to - dark brown haired types paraded in rooms colored to accent their beauty as effectively as the lipstick, rouge and nail polish they wore.

Among American women, 40 per cent are brunettes, 20 per cent are blondes, brunettes or redheads, according to the color expert, Bernice Bowser, who conceived the free color-type guides you can find in retail stores today. She says your walls and ceiling are the biggest part of your home background. Choose these first and then follow through with corresponding color consideration for other hues in your house, she advises.

Her idea is that any woman can wear any color if she will pick the right shade or tint. She advises two-color combinations in a room as an aid to the proper setting for all types. That can mean the contrast between wallpaper on one wall and paint on the other three. Or a color scheme worked out with paint only.

From Pigtails To Coiffure

AP Feature Service

Little girls can grow out of pigtails all at once or by degrees.

Pigtails can be chic, as in the case of those at the left. Little velvet bows tie the ends. The sides have been brushed away from the face.

The girl at the right has said farewell to pigtails. She has a light permanent and brushes her hair back from her face. A big curl loops over the ribbon. These styles were worked out by Charles of the The Ritz.

A chalk-striped double-breasted suit in the new Air Force blue is this young man's choice. The long coat is cut straight rather than to fit the form.

Financial and Commercial

New York, May 3 (AP)—Stock of railroads and railway equipment manufacturers made fairly strong gains today in an otherwise irresolute market.

While some of these selected issues advanced as much as two points, the majority of variations at the close of the short session was only fractional. Transactions totaled about 200,000 shares.

Increased defense production and predictions of consequently greatly enlarged railroad traffic focused attention on the carriers.

The day's greatest activity, however, centered in cotton dealings, with the price of the stable bounding upward more than $1 a bale in heavy transactions.

Most active among rising stocks were Yellow Truck, Douglas, Du Pont, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Great Northern Preferred, Southern Railway, Santa Fe, American Car & Foundry preferred and Skelly Oil. The last three reached new highs for the year.

Hesitant were Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, and some of the steel.

Bonds and commodities were steady.

Moving lower in the curb were American Cyanamid "B," Chesapeake, Hartford Electric and Mead Johnson. Among the gainers were International Petroleum, Cities Service and Fairchild Engineering.

Boardroom notes reports from steel centers showing a rapid resumption of milling activity, now that fresh coal and coke supplies again are sighted. Steel ingot production in the Pittsburgh area, for instance, is expected to jump at least to 95 per cent of capacity next week from the present 93.

Yellow Truck attracted attention by its earnings report for the first quarter, showing profits doubled compared with the like 1940 period.

Railroad equipment and railroad stocks were benefited by the Association of American Railroad suggestion that rail transportation will hit a peak in 1943 and that roads should acquire 27,000 additional cars.

Murray Sets Aside Central Hudson's Award of $5,340

An award of $5,340.50 made to the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation by condemnation commissioners Roy M. Hart, Merton L. Goldrick and John F. Roche, Jr., in the corporation's claim against the City of New York for excess maintenance of new substituted transmission lines to replace pre-existing lines, has been set aside and dismissed by Justice Murray before whom the report was presented at special term for confirmation. The balance of the report of the commissioners is allowed relative to the award to the Central Hudson Corporation as well as an award to the New York Telephone Company for relocation lines.

Objection to the award made by the commissioners for excess cost of maintenance of the new lines was made by Henry R. Bright and John E. Egan in behalf of the City of New York but awards for construction of a new line around the reservoir and for value of branch lines acquired and which were not relocated were moved for confirmation by the city.

Justice Murray confirms Item A, the award of $15,740.97 which the commission reported to cover the cost of construction of the new line around the reservoir; Item B, an award of $3,783.74 which the commission held was the value of branch lines which were acquired by the City and which were not relocated.

The award for Item B, $3,783.74, is rejected by the court. The central Hudson Corporation sought to recover damages under this item on the grounds that the relocation of electric lines as reconstructed compelled them to maintain 6.30 miles of line over more difficult terrain while prior to the taking the line was 4.42 miles in length. This additional 1.88 miles of transmission line over more rugged ground and through mountainous country, the corporation maintained was a more expensive task. The Commission of Appraisal took this testimony into consideration and allowed the sum of $5,340.50 but Justice Murray ruled the award out.

Members of this commission in allowing Item C, for an extra maintenance around the Rondout Reservoir, held opposite to the commissioners who heard the claim of the Ellenville Electric Company. That claim was disallowed by another commission.

The report of the commissioners was presented at special term in Albany on January 31, 1941, before Justice Murray when the City of New York moved for confirmation of the awards made for Items A and B, but moved to reject Item C.

Justice Murray in disallowing the claim made in Item C, says, "this court can find no basis in law for the award as made by the commission for excess cost of operating and maintaining claimant's electric light and power lines on the substituted routes and locations."

Gold & Wikie appeared for the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation. The decision of Justice Murray will be appealed to the Appellate Division.

Fishing at Shore Along Reservoir Banned by Order

Fishing from the shore of the Ashokan reservoir has been banned under the proclamation issued by Governor Lehman recently closing all forests to fishermen, hunters and others. At the Department offices today it was stated that while fishing had been banned from shore under the proclamation of the Governor this did not affect those fishing from boats upon the Ashokan, provided the boats were moored adjacent to highway.

If it becomes necessary to traverse wooded areas in order to reach a moored boat, such penetration of a forest will be considered in violation to the order closing forests during the dry spell.

New Boulevard Station Is Open for Business

The New Boulevard Super Service Station, Harland Thomas and Edward Parmelee, proprietors, located at the corner of Fair street and Greenkill avenue on the site of the old "stone cottage" opened today. Located directly opposite their old Boulevard station which was opened for service on May 1, 1936, the Messrs. Thomas and Parmelee have one of the most modern stations in the Hudson valley.

The new station, serving Gulf products, is of modern design in white tile with blue tile trimming and is completely equipped for the servicing of the motorist. Servicing the station is a large square tower which is illuminated at night. The main office, equipped with modern, clean rest rooms, faces Greenkill avenue and to the rear is a two-lift lubrication room and to the extreme northerly side of the station is a wash rack. The station is heated throughout by a single unit oil burner.

In addition to Gulf gas and oil products, a complete line of tires, batteries and accessories will be carried. A pick-up and delivery service is maintained by the service department.

President Roosevelt, the United States' son is expected to continue on to Cairo, reaching the Egyptian capital probably next week.

Governor's Veto Wipes Out Sums To Cut Expenses

Albany, N. Y., May 3 (AP)—Governor Lehman's veto wiped out today proposed state expenditures which he estimated at $21,600,000 while accusing Republican majority legislators of "talking" economy and passing bills "which would vastly increase the cost of government."

The funds would have been spent under 28 bills approved by the legislature in addition to a $383,500,000 state budget, adoption of which Republicans forced after claiming a $2,000,000 reduction in the governor's 1941-42 financial plan.

Recalling his recommendation for elimination of the one per cent emergency income tax to save taxpayers $21,000,000 in 1942—in which Republicans concurred—and asserting his original budget proposal was $9,000,000 below last year, the governor said:

"I advised the legislature that in order to maintain the state in a sound financial position, it was necessary for the legislature to practice the fullest measure of economy."

"The only additional appropriations that are justified are in connection with national defense or those of an urgent character," Lehman added. "All savings that can be made in the regular functions of government should be made."

He conceded objectives of many of the vetoed measures were "meritorious" but declared there was "no excuse" for Republican legislators talking a game of economy and then passing scores of bills that would vastly increase cost of government—failing even to make provisions for the revenues to meet those additional expenditures.

Contending cost to municipalities under the vetoed bills would have "run into millions" in the future, he listed among their objectives and state expense which would have been involved next year:

Research by state agencies into various agricultural problems, $85,000; state aid for kindergartens, $1,800,000; state, instead of county acquisition of highway rights-of-way, $5,000,000; permit property owners to sue the state for alleged losses from grade crossings, $10,000,000; new construction at Alfred University and State Agriculture Schools at Morrisville and St. Lawrence University, $600,000; state construction of arterial highways through cities, $2,000,000; raise normal school educational standards to the teacher college level, $218,700.

Also one additional Supreme Court justice. In the Seventh Judicial District, $20,000; eight-hour day for building and grade caretakers at state institutions, $50,000; increased retirement allowance and lower retirement age in the state employees pension system, $1,300,000; state purchase of property on Oneida Lake and at Montauk Point, $177,000.

Cards and Indians Set Pace; Recs in Practice Game Sunday

Both Clubs Have Winning Streaks; Wyatt Wins Fourth

Mel Harder Wins for Tribe 7 to 3 Over Sox; Ted Lyons Stops Yankees; Tigers Win, 15-1

(By The Associated Press)
This spring is setting some kind of a record in winning streaks in the major leagues—if not in length, then certainly in breadth. The Brooklyn Dodgers dazzled the baseball world for a while by running their string to nine games. Now, before the shine has worn off this feat, it is endangered by both the Cleveland Indians and St. Louis Cardinals.

The Indians, American League leaders, have won eight in a row and the National League pace-setting Cards have taken seven straight. These glittering streaks show how fast the races are at the moment and why teams with records good enough to be in first place most years are back in the pack.

Indians Hit Well

Cleveland, considered a light-hitting combination at the start of the season uncorked 56 safeties in its last four games.

This power helped the veteran Mel Harder get credit for his third straight victory yesterday, 7-3 against the Boston Red Sox. Jeff Heath hit a triple with the bases loaded, Hal Trosky made three hits, including a home run, and Ken Keltner smacked three for extra bases.

The Cardinals punched out a 4-2 triumph over the Phillies with a young pitcher, Howard Krist, turning in a five-hit performance. He had a shutout until the ninth.

The Dodgers showed no signs of a letdown after Cincinnati's interruption of their winning streak, as they crushed the Chicago Cubs 7-3. Whitlow Wyatt hurled fourth ball for his fourth straight victory against one defeat, and Dolph Camilli clouted his seventh home run.

Giants-Bees Tie

The New York Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates played the season's first tie game, 7-7, yielding to darkness after 13 innings. Gabby Hartnett, onetime Cub star and manager, made his first start as a catcher for the Giants and got two hits, his double scoring two runs in a four-run third-inning. Mel Ott drove in three runs. Two on his fifth homer of the spring. The Pirates tied the score with a four-run spurge in the eighth.

The Washington Senators and St. Louis Browns came up with another marathon which Washington won 7-4 in 12 innings. The payoff came on Rick Ferrell's single with the bases loaded followed by Piffner Sid Hudson's double. It was Hudson's first victory and he went all the way, giving ten hits. Manager Fred Haney and Coach Fred Hoffman of the Browns were banished in a dispute with Umpire Cal Hubbard. It was the first time a manager has been tossed out this season.

Ruffing Clouted

The Chicago White Sox cooled off the New York Yankees, who had won 31 of their previous games. Ted Lyons held them to five and the Sox ambushed Red Ruffing for five runs in the sixth inning after he had held them to one single in the first five frames. Joe Kuhel's double was the kingpin in this uprising and another by the same slugger figured in a three-run spurge against Charley Stanceu in the next inning. The 8-1 victory lifted the Sox into second again.

The Detroit Tigers kept their artillery white hot by reeling off 17 hits to beat the Philadelphia Athletics 15-1 behind the seven-hit hurling of Schoolboy Rowe.

History sometimes repeats and sometimes doesn't. The Giants at no time last year were ahead of the Brooklyn Dodgers or even even. This year the Manhattan side of the interborough battle forged in front opening day and piled up a 3-game lead on the Brooks by the time the 3-game series ended.

Philadelphia—Bobby Bruns, 18, Chicago, threw Don Evans, 220, Philadelphia, (25-09).
New Britain, Conn.—Steve (Crusher) Casey, Ireland, defeated George Timothy Linehan, Boston, (1-25).

The Boston Bees are aiming at the National League first division this year. They have high hopes of upsetting the various expert consensus which vote them no more than a slim chance. They have figures, too, to bolster the hopes. The world champion Reds and the Brooklyn Dodgers ran true to prediction form by showing the best percentages against American League clubs in the pre-season exhibition games. The Cincies won 13 against 10 defeats while the Brooks had 11 and 9. Boston ranked third in the senior circuit's interleague competition, with 10 wins against 9 setbacks, so Cardinals, Cubs, Pirates and Giants better watch their steps.

Bay State Man Smashed Records in 1940 Race by Winning Second Time in a Row

New York, May 3 — Clayton Bishop, the 41-year-old Houdini of the Hudson, is going to give old man river an all-out battle for the last time on May 11 when he starts in his eighth, and he says, final, Albany to New York Marathon.

Bishop, who is chief of the fire department down at Onset, Mass., shattered all marathon traditions last May when he crossed the finish line the winner of the hazardous 130-mile race for the third time, and the second year in a row. Aside from setting himself up on the towering pinnacle of a triple triumph, the quiet, slow spoken Buzzard's Bay skipper otherwise has an enviable record in the Hudson river steeplechase.

First Try in 1934
Out of seven starts from Albany, Bishop has reached New York six times, and hit the prize jackpot on each occasion. His first try, in 1934, netted him third place out of a field of 64 starters and 18 finishers. The next year he slipped back to sixth position but on his third try in 1936, a year when 16 out of 75 outboard hydroplanes finished, the Onset smoke-eater scored his first victory.

The amazing Mr. Bishop almost kicked over the record bucket in 1937 when he placed second, only four and one-half minutes astern the winner. His only failure in the marathon came in 1938 when his motor broke down early in the grind. He came back in 1939, however, to win for a second time and break the Hudson hoodoo that for 10 years had kept any previous champion from repeating. Last May with water conditions the worst in race history, Bishop again led the field home when only five drivers were able to finish out of the 70 that had started down the river from Albany.

Same Outfit Again

Sunday, May 11, when the Middle Atlantic Outboard Association sponsors the 14th annual Albany to New York "driftwood derby," Bishop will be using a combination of Class B hydroplane outfit that has figured in all three of his marathon triumphs. The boat is the same that he has driven in everyone of his seven previous runs but the motor has a unique record of having won the event for two consecutive years. The motor was a gift from Bishop's fellow firemen at Christmas in 1938.

With the outboard hydroplanes furnishing the chief interest in this year's Albany to New York race, the outboard runabouts and inboard runabouts and inboard hydroplanes also will have their place in the program, competing for separate prizes. Run on a handicap basis with allowances taken at the start, the 130-mile grind is a free-for-all for the outboard hydroplanes with the first driver to cross the finish line the winner.

Ed Kroepke, Middle Atlantic secretary, has announced that Midget class outboards are being entered this year, which means that the official start will be set up from 7 o'clock Sunday morning to 6:15 a. m., giving the "mighty mites" a 45-minute start on Class A. The finish line this year is at the foot of Dyckman street in New York city, just above the George Washington Bridge.

Downhill Stadium

Washington, D. C. — Some umpires figure the ratio of close plays at first base at Griffith Stadium here is 4 to 1 over any other American league park because there's a slight downhill slope from the plate to first base, enabling the players to arrive at first with vital split-second sooner.

Gumbert Repeats

New York, D. C. — History repeated itself in the case of Harry Gumbert, New York Giants pitcher. Gumbert was the first Giant hurler to go the full nine innings to a triumph last season and grabbed the honor again this year.

Experts See Wide Open Race in Today's Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs

67th Running Will Have 11 Horses at Barrier; Odds Still Favor Our Boots, 2-1

Louisville, Ky., May 3 (AP)—Months of minute preparations ended for the pick of the nation's three-year-old thoroughbreds today as they brought their $75,000 argument to Churchill Downs' classic mile and quarter for the 67th running of the Kentucky Derby.

Eleven horses, 10 colts and a lone gelding, were named overnight for the richest derby since the little red horse, Aristides, started this growing American madness in 1875. There was a possibility, however, that only 10 would parade to the barrier at 5:45 p. m., eastern standard time. Lou Tufano, Jamaica, N. Y., paving contractor, said that he planned to scratch Market Wise, Wood Memorial winner, unless rain softened the racing strip as he feared the hard track would cause permanent injury to his colt's already none too good foot. (There was little likelihood of rain).

Col. Matt Winn, president of the Downs, predicted a record smashing attendance of close to 100,000 with $2,000,000 pouring through the mutuel machines for the first time since $2,096,613 was wagered in 1926, the year E. R. Bradley's horses ran one, two for the second time.

The race itself was so wide open that one man's opinion was as good as another.

Royce Martin's Our Boots, battling the jinx that has kept any Belmont Futurity winner from capturing the Derby, Charles S. (Lucky) Howard's Porter, Cap and Warren Wright's Whackey Whirlaway came in for the bulk of the support but there was no stand-out.

Early odds quoted Our Boots at 2 to 1, Porter's Cap at 5 to 2 and Whirlaway at 5 to 1 but there was a strong probability that the Martin and Howard representatives would end up nighty near co-choices.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, May 3 (AP)—South American countries are burning up the wires for more dope on the rumored Jack Dempsey (F.D.R.) sponsored, good-will tour down there at $1 per year and found.

Owner C. S. Howard thought enough of Porter's Cap's chances today to lay $1,000 on him at four to one in the winter books—biggest single bet reported so far.

When the Cubs made their final payment on Billy Myers yesterday, they sent the Red Sox a check for $7,500 instead of a third player. . . . Does Frank Leahy think he is the Will Hays of gridiron movies? Anyway the papers say he has asked newsreel firms to withdraw pictures of the Sugar Bowl game from circulation on the grounds that scene of Boston College plays may aid Notre Dame opponents this fall. A couple of haws.

The Darby (CK)
Which one is your choice today. Our Boots or Whirlaway? Maybe we are just a sap. But our dough rides on Porter's Cap.

However, should there come a rain you climb aboard that colt named Swain.

The Broadway Beat

Don Budge, back from the tennis tours and looking very fit. (When you ask him about that next week's announcement, he grins and says, "be on hand at the luncheon") . . . Herman Taylor, Philadelphia promoter, lunching in Lindy's and looking very lonesome. . . . Al Weill, smartest of the fight managers, closing for a bout while getting shaved in a barber shop on W. 47th street. . . . Eddie Brannick, in a louder-than-usual sports jacket, en route home from the W. 50th street bistros, much too late for the secretary of the New York Giants. . . . Chorines from the "Pal Joey" hit making eyes at Billy Conn as he swings up Seventh avenue for a huddle with Mike Jacobs. . . . The Jacobs beachcombers saying it was very much a shame the late Joe Jacobs' family didn't get his 33 1/3 per cent manager's cut from Tony Galento's fight with Max Baer.

Midnight Derby Odds

Here are Jimmy Carroll's press time figures (and it looks like the field): Our Boots 8-5; Porter's Cap 2-1; Whirlaway 6-1; Dispose 8-1; Robert Morris 15-1; Little Beans and Market Wise 20 and 25 to 1; Staretor and Swain (watch him) 50-1; Valinda Paul 100-1. . . . Ford Frick, president of the National League, will guest-star on Bill Stern's "Sports Newsreel of the Air" tomorrow night and we hope he don't get balled up about the Bees and the Red Sox as he did last time he was in front of a mike. . . . John Barnhill's appointment as head coach at Tennessee was no surprise, but most Dixie experts thought Maj. Bill Britton, the end coach, would have been named athletic director pro tem. As it turns out, the major still is a private—in football. . . .

Has Outstanding Record

RITA MARKLE

Here's one of Kingston's ace women bowlers as she lets go with the ball in a recent match. It's Rita Markle, the Class A city singles champion who rolled a sensational 565 series in the recent ladies' tournament held at Emerick's Recreation Alleys. Miss Markle's score was the highest Class A singles rolled in the Mid-Hudson district this year. Rita Markle was high average scorer in the Colonial Women's League with 160 for 90 games on the alleys. She has maintained a 172 average for the last 36 games. Although only in the game for her second season, Miss Markle has rocketed to the top. She was anchor player on the Barbizon team this season.

Final Tune-Up Is Scheduled Before Pittsfield Game

Local Club Still Looking for Catcher; Fabritius Might Appear on Sunday for Stadium Game

Another important practice, the last before meeting Pittsfield of the Canadian-American League Tuesday evening, has been called by Manager Joe Hoffman of the Recreations for Sunday afternoon at the municipal stadium. All hands are expected to attend.

Players are requested to be at the stadium no later than 1:30 o'clock. The first intra-team game will be played at 2:15 o'clock. From this competition Manager Hoffman expects to see just what kind of a ball club he has.

The main topic of conversation concerning the Recs of late is the catching department which hasn't been represented at all during the first few practice sessions. Both Gabby Benjamin and Stoll have gone in other directions and this leaves Hoffman without one receiver.

Although the local club hasn't been able to find a capable backstopper as yet it is rumored that Al Fabritius of Newburgh and possibly one or two Middletown catchers will report to the stadium Sunday afternoon for the drill.

With the initial practice tilt scheduled tomorrow the Recs are wondering just who will be on the firing line. A possible starter for one team might look something like this: Bing Van Etten, Abe Masci, Andy Celuch and Charlie Francello in the infield,

Chief Deasy Talks On 'Overhauling' Firemen Attending School Hear of 'Clean-Up'

James J. Deasy, retired battalion chief of the New York Fire Department, gave an interesting talk on "Overhauling at Fires" at the weekly session of the volunteer firemen's school held Friday evening in the M. J. Michael School under the auspices of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association.

The school session was attended by approximately 275 volunteer firemen of Ulster county. This was the seventh session of the school. There are three more sessions to be held on May 9, 16 and 23.

Excerpts from Chief Deasy's lecture follow:

"Overhauling" in "Fire Department" language, is the term used to indicate the work of the department when finishing up at fires. The objective of this operation is mainly to locate (by a thorough search) any remaining hidden fire, sparks or embers. Other results of this operation are minimizing damage to stock and structure, or in dwelling to the various contents. The principal intent of overhauling is to assure that after the Fire Department has left the fire ground, that no fire remains to allow what is known as a "rekindle."

When "rekindles" occur it is distinct evidence that this very important phase of fire fighting has either been neglected, carried out in a very careless manner or that the officer directing operations has not by previous training and study of this part of the work, understood the importance of the operation.

To assure efficient overhauling operations, firemen (especially officers) must have a concrete grasp of building construction, nature of the properties of materials affected by fire and the tactical method of conducting overhauling.

Instances are on record where firemen have been seriously injured (and on all too many occasions killed) because this very important work was not conducted properly or not distinctly understood by those in charge. It cannot be denied that "overhauling," if properly carried out, will materially reduce water loss and result in the conservation of water. In communities where booster equipment is the source of water supply and feeders for such equipment are distant from fire ground, every gallon of water available for emergency requiring hose stream operation, must be conserved that it will be available when required.

Firemen and fire officers must always have in mind certain factors associated with this very important part of fire extinguishment, otherwise the hazard of needless injury and at times death will eventually create unnecessary physical dangers to the men of the department engaged.

Not having the detailed knowledge of the proper methods to employ, or if understood are disregarded, materially increases fire losses.

Strike Is Voted At Country Club Frocks Factory

strike against the Country Club Frocks and Max Ulman, Inc., at 13 Pine Grove avenue late last night. The strike is effective as of this morning.

The union charges that Joseph Honig, treasurer of Country Club and son-in-law of Max Ulman, has repeatedly conducted a campaign of coercion and intimidation with the object of discouraging unionization.

"On April 18, Mr. Honig delivered a speech to his employees on the pretense of explaining the Wagner Act," charged Jacob Schneider, local union representative, "but in reality it was a signal the employer gave to his employees to stay away."

Last Thursday a majority of the Country Club employees met expressing a favorable attitude to the union," states Mr. Schneider.

"The employers of Country Club pressed their supervisors into action," declared Schneider, "in an effort to overcome the union sentiment."

"The employers induced a number of girls to meet and vote against the union in an illegal election."

"Raises were given to a number of the workers yesterday," states Schneider, "immediately preceding the meeting. Increases varied from $2 to $5 per person."

"While the raises were long overdue," Schneider continued, "the firm in its desperation to avoid unionization was willing to pay any price."

"The cutting department met last night. An attempt was made to arrange a conference with Mr. Honig, whose secretary reported that he was out of town."

"This," declared Schneider, "and the general misconduct of the employers resulted in a strike."

Bowlers Leave City

This morning at 10 o'clock Ad Jones, Charlie Tiano, Johnny Ferraro and Randy Kelder left for Buffalo to participate in the state bowling tournament. The keggers will later appear in St. Paul for the National Congress. Charlie Howroyd of Poughkeepsie, a veteran bowler, will join the other members in St. Paul. Fred Rice, Al Kieffer and Ed Modjeska will also join the bowlers in Buffalo for tonight's activity in the five-man event.

Anglo-Iraq War Flames Fiercely

night swept across northern Germany and struck again at off-bombed Hamburg, where the air ministry said huge fires were started and extensive damage was inflicted on docks and industrial areas.

At the same time the Luftwaffe smashed at Liverpool and other Merseyside areas for the second successive night, in what was described as one of the heaviest attacks of the war.

In the sea war, the German high command claimed bombers, submarines and surface warships had sunk 1,211,000 tons of British or British-controlled shipping during April, of which 400,000 tons were sunk in Greek waters.

On the other hand, the British admiralty announced that the British withdrawal from Greece had been accomplished with the loss of only two destroyers and four transports.

In an aftermath to the conquest of Yugoslavia, Italy today formally announced the annexation of Ljubljana, capital of Slovenia, and surrounding territory occupied by Italian troops.

Reliable London sources said Iraq's premier had appealed to Adolf Hitler for military aid shortly after a clash at the British-occupied Habbaniyah airdrome.

Boy Apprehended After Wire Home For Needed Cash

Shortly after 7 o'clock Friday night the police department received a telephone call from the Franklin, O., police department asking that Joseph Orebaugh, 14, who had run away from his home there be picked up.

The Franklin police said that the boy's mother had just received a telegram from her son sent from Kingston in which he requested that she forward him $15.

The local police got in touch with the Western Union office here and when the boy called to see if an answer had been received from his telegram he was picked up and taken to police headquarters.

As the mother had telegraphed the money with the request that the boy be started on his way home the police purchased the boy's ticket with the money sent and saw him on board a Greyhound bus enroute to Ohio.

Communists in India's cities are keeping the police busy disposing of banned leaflets.

Axis Propaganda Plus Anglo Policy May Hurt Britain

at Habbaniyah also is calculated to cut the Imperial airline to India and the far East. It will be a serious development if the proposed Iraqi government, which seized power by a coup recently, should be able to secure control of this important link in the communications. Iraq is Britain's air base for the whole middle eastern territory.

The action of the new Iraqi regime in tearing up its alliance with Britain and launching an armed attack on imperial troops, has its roots in several causes.

One is that German and Italian agents have been working assiduously for years among the Arabs of the entire Mediterranean and Near East area in an effort to win them away from the British.

Another, I should say, undoubtedly is to be found in the anti-British crusade by the grand mufti of Jerusalem, who is in exile in Baghdad. The grand mufti is a leader of close to a million Moslems, and wields vast influence in the Arabian countries.

It may be because of his hand in the affair that the cry of holy war — attack on Christians and other "unbelievers" — has been raised in Iraq. Should such a conflict get under way, and spread among the fanatical sections of the Arab population of the Near East, it would create a terrible situation.

Beyond these causes, however, is one which is perhaps far more important. That rests in the hostility which has been created among the Arabian peoples to Britain's policy in Palestine. This has aroused much bitterness, for racial and religious sentiment binds Arabs together in the face of foreigners.

The Arabs of Palestine claim that Britain promised them sovereignty over that country to win their support in the World War, and then broke faith by establishing the Jewish national home. This has aroused hostility among Moslems in general throughout the Near East, and even has had its effect on Anglo-Egyptian relations.

Thus with the Palestine question still unsettled, and a thorn in the side of the Arabs, there is always the danger that the Iraq affair might attract support in neighboring countries. Still, that is a matter of speculation at this juncture and one which need not be emphasized unduly, pending developments.

A serious shortage of motor tires, many sizes being unobtainable, threatens to force a large number of vehicles off the road in New Zealand.

R. A. F. FIELD REPORTER SHELLED IN IRAQ

This is the airmen's quarters at the R. A. F. airdrome, Habbaniyah airport, Iraq, which was reported being shelled by Iraq forces after the British had landed troops in Iraq "to maintain communications." German radio broadcast asserted Rashid Ali Al Gailani, pro-Axis premier of Iraq since a recent coup, had called on his people to take arms against Britain.

NEW AREA THREATENED BY AXIS DRIVE

As German forces cracked the outer defenses of British-held Tobruk (1), English observers expected the Axis to attempt to reach the Nile and Suez from Libya and by sending forces from Greece to Syria and Palestine (2). Dotted lines indicate possible land or sea routes. England landed more troops at Basra, Iraq, (3) but Iraq forces were reported to have attacked the R. A. F. airdrome at Habbaniyah.

Has No Illusions

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 3 (AP)—Bobby Jones 3rd, son of the former Grand-Slam King, has no illusions about his game. Coming up to the fifth hole of the country club in the Southern Prep and High School Tournament, he was asked how he liked the course. "I don't know," he replied. "I haven't found it yet." (Note: He never did locate it, shooting 95-98-193 for 36 holes.)

Purchases Building

Former Alderman Joseph Epstein, who operates a news and tobacco store at 48 Broadway, has added to his real estate holdings by purchasing the adjoining store at 50 Broadway. Mr. Epstein now owns the store buildings at 46, 48 and 50 Broadway. The store at 50 Broadway, now owned by Mr. Epstein, is occupied by Joseph Jerusalem as a dry goods store. Mr. Epstein said today that Mr. Jerusalem would continue to occupy the store indefinitely.
